REPORT OF THE PROVOST

Welcomed new senators and expressed that he is a strong proponent of joint governance. He will continue to seek advice and defer where the senate takes the lead. Especially around curriculum, the way we teach, anything that appears on the transcript.

Faculty Fellows

Accepting 2015-2016 applications through May 15. Information available on the provost website at www.provost.ucf.edu. Fellowship is focused on leadership development. Encourage colleagues to apply.

Inclusive Education Program

Held community information forum for a pilot program for students with intellectual disabilities or unique abilities. The pilot will launch on the main campus in fall and will have five to six students. Over 100 families expressed interest in the program. Students will be enrolled in undergraduate courses with the option to live in campus housing and fully participate in college life through student organizations. Intent of the program is to help students achieve their own self determined learning goal and empower them with the skills to advance in independent living and employment. The Inclusive Education Team is led by Adam Meyer with Student Accessibility Services. Applications for the program is open until May 8. The program is a key component of UCF Downtown which is anticipated to open in the fall of 2017. For questions or information contact Adam Meyer or Mark Gumble in SDES. You may have students in the program in your class. The team will help faculty welcome and help the students adapt to the classes. Ehasz added that the students will be auditing classes and are not receiving a degree, but will receive a certificate of participation to document their skills and competencies.

A bill in the legislature will designate UCF as a statewide center to receive and designate federal funds to other programs in other universities. Center will also provide information to parents on how to select a university and prepare. Faculty in the UCF's PhD program are working with the center and has the potential to do national level research.

UCF Downtown

Continue planning with Cannon Design Group. End of semester the Downtown Steering committee will send recommendations for academic programs to the Leadership team for final decision. A Provost update will be sent next week with information regarding the academic programs. Still waiting on the final decision from the Legislature regarding funding. Providing an update to the BOG at the June meeting.

Gardner Report – Proposed College of Undergraduate Studies

In 2014, UCF invited John Garner and Betsy Barefoot to campus to meet with faculty, staff, and administration to learn more about the Office of Undergraduate Studies. The review submitted assessed the current structure of the Office of Undergraduate Studies and provided recommendations for new organizational direction for undergraduate education to advance UCF goals and primary focus of becoming a 21st century model of undergraduate education emphasizing excellence, innovation and distinction within the state and at the national level. Provost will send a link to the faculty senate to the two-page summary report and the full report. Discussed key findings in the report and recommendations. Recommendations: (1) elevate the office to a college, (2) shared faculty governance in the interdisciplinary curriculum, and (3) a need for campus leadership and a general education champion.

Reiterated that now is the time to consider this elevation to a college, specifically due to the hiring of a new Vice Provost for Teaching and Learning and a Dean of Undergraduate Studies. Two of the four candidates are currently deans at institutions where undergraduate studies is a college or a university college. Holding in person interviews with candidates in May. Candidates include:

Dr. Kathy Johnson

Associate Vice Chancellor of Undergraduate Education
Dean University College
Professor of Psychology
Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis (IUPUI)

Dr. Elizabeth Dooley

Associate Provost of Undergraduate Academic Affairs
Dean University College
Professor of Curriculum and Instruction
West Virginia University

Dr. Manoj Chopra

Interim Vice Provost, Teaching and Learning
Interim Dean, Undergraduate Studies
Professor of Civil Environmental and Construction Engineering
University of Central Florida

Dr. Barbara Speziale

Associate Dean of Undergraduate Studies
Professor of Biological Sciences
Clemson University

Provost opened the floor to questions and concerns.

Question: Do we have any evidence of the benefits and drawbacks of forming a College of Graduate Studies? From a faculty perspective this has added logistics, forms, procedures, and layer of administration.

Answer: No changes in layer of administration or structure in Undergraduate Studies. The College of Graduate Studies has just taken over responsibility for interdisciplinary graduate programs. Opportunity is yet to be seen.

Answer Dean Hinkle: Work with colleges to ensure quality graduate education. Work with Senate Graduate Council on curriculum issues, student appeals, and policies. College issues waivers and fellowships that require a certain amount of paperwork. Supports colleges to ensure a quality graduate education.

Question: Will the Undergraduate College have oversight over degrees across campus to ensure undergraduate degrees have a level of consistency or just to give 400+ homeless students a home?

Answer: Somewhere in between. Don't anticipate any change in level of governance, but expect strong leadership.

Question: UCF has a tendency to legislate from the top down. Would like to see college limited to interdisciplinary type degrees and not taking away existing functions within colleges.

Answer: Take leadership position in terms of things that affect all students. Would like to see college serve as an incubator for faculty members that want to pilot new degree tracks.

Question: Would you be amendable to calling it the College of Interdisciplinary Studies rather than College of Undergraduate Studies?

Answer: Possibly. Have also heard College of Integrative Studies. Open to recommendations.

Question: Will the College of Undergraduate Studies be the entity to assist and monitor SACS?

Answer: No SACS.

Comment: The UPCC committee reviewed the summary report and there were questions. Committee did not vote on the change, but requested the full report. Pleased to see the full report is coming. Questions were raised regarding funding and if this will cut the budgets of colleges.

Response: No. Right now we are only talking about a title change. Undergraduate Studies is currently undergoing a reorganization using current resources.

Provost would like to know if he has the support to move forward. Oetjen informed the senators that the 2014-2015 Steering Committee supported the title change, but referred the discussion to the UPCC. Senators would like to review the full report to review information not yet discussed. Discussed options for moving forward. Motion to indicate support of the title change from Office of Undergraduate Studies to College of Undergraduate Studies based on current information by show of hands. Majority in favor of the title change.
