January 16th senate meeting- chair announcements

Welcome everyone! Please remember to either fill out the guest log by the door as you come in, or to use the Qualtrics survey that was just sent to you via email.

For all those on zoom, please rename yourself starting with FS if you are a senator, and with a G if you are a guest here for the meeting.

Now, let's move ahead with the approval of the Minutes from the December 5th Senate meeting

Next is recognition of guests. I want to thank those administrators, staff and faculty that are here today and we welcome you to the senate.

I have a blend of Announcements and short reports today:

First, we only have two remaining senate meetings to consider resolutions (I'M NOT COUNTING TODAY). And I am aware of somewhere between 4 and 6 resolutions that are in progress!

This means that for a Bylaw resolution...

Your committee needs to send an approved Bylaw resolution to the faculty senate office by Jan 22nd at the latest....If you send it later, you will miss the ability for us to approve any bylaw amendment.

This means for a normal (non-Bylaw) resolution...

Your committee needs to send an approved resolution to the faculty senate office by February 19th at the latest....If you send it later, you will miss the ability for us to approve any resolution this senate term.

One last note on resolutions...if you are writing or planning to write a resolution, our senate web course has an entire module on resolutions, with a newly added page with suggestions on how to write a resolution.

2nd:announcement: I want to thank Tim Letzring and his team on finding an efficient way to do our sudden BOG-mandated course attestation for appropriate materials. I found the new system very easy to do within simple syllabus...one click and done! Great Job!

3rd:announcement: what can each of us do to help meet preeminence?

I'll share something I had the opportunity to do. We now have advisors and success coaches looking in detail at the cohort of students we would like to graduate by this summer.

IN my case, I had advisors from my department come and ask me to increase enrollment over my maximum capacity in my dual lecture lab class so that 4 students that needed my class could take it now, and graduate on time either this spring or this summer.

Yes, I had to find a way to get more bodies into an already tight lab, but I found a way to do that. I don't know why the students didn't figure out earlier in their coursework that they needed my class...that's not my immediate concern....What I am happy that I could do, and what I hope everyone here is doing, is finding simple ways like this to help, or 2 or 3 or 4 students to be able to take the classes they need and to get out by summer.

Remember , we only missed preeminence by about 100 students last year...so if we all help just one students, we almost cover that with our 75 senators.

Last Announcement:

Resolution 2024-2025-04 Periodic Faculty Salary Analyses Across UCF was denied. The Provost's response is posted on our Resolution website.

The provost's reply stated that the salary analysis is helpful and will be continued. His reasons for denying the amended salary study include 1) that most big 12 peers are already part of the peer set we use, and 2) wage erosion is not unique to UCF or higher ed, and should not be included in a comparison with other employers in our economic sector.

Ok that's it for announcements

For my report of the chair for today, I want to share information about the behind the scenes steps required to set up senate elections every year.

First, here are three key dates that are written into the constitution and Bylaws You can find these and other key dates in the handout I made and distributed with the addendum to the meeting materials, this went out Wednesday in an email and is also in the meeting invitation:

- 1) A count is made of all UCF employed general faculty as of the first day of the spring semester. That's Jan 6th this year
- 2) Each senate eligible unit will be given information on what elections to run as of the fourth week of the spring semester. this is January 31st this year
- 3) All elections must be completed by March 1st.

So, let's go into more detail:

First day of spring semester: January 6th: we run a workday report to identify all faculty employed at UCF. We have to make sure we include those eligible to run for the senate, and exclude those that are not eligible for senate such as visiting professors or those faculty that have higher level administrative positions. For example, the provost is a full-time faculty employed by UCF. Due to his administrative position, however, he is not eligible to run for a senate seat or to participate in any senate voting.

There are always errors in any such report (especially from workday?1?), so we send a unit specific version to each college so that they can double check the report for faculty within their own college. We sent this out on January 7th this year. The units have a deadline of returning that to the senate by Friday January 17th. THIS IS TOMORROW!! This is a point where I will emphasize that a single unit that is slow in returning their double-checked faculty headcount can stop us from finalizing apportionment across the campus. 7 units have already given us their numbers, and we are waiting to hear from the 7 remaining units COS, CAH, CCIE, COM, CBA, CREOL, OR

Once we have the official totals of faculty from every college unit, we calculate how many senators to apportion to each academic unit for the coming senate session- the 2025-2026 session.

Three simple rules are written into the constitution and bylaws:

- 1) Every unit gets a minimum of 2 senators
- 2) No unit can have more than 20% of the total senators...since we have 75 senators, this means no unit can have more than 15 total senators.
- 3) After we do steps 1 and 2, we apportion all remaining senators based on the proportion of faculty they have relative to other units.

As soon as we finalize the number of senators each college unit will have, we send that count of senators to each unit, so that each college unit can have an internal vote to approve how senators will be elected from their unit. This is not voting for the actual named senators, instead...this is a college wide vote OF THE FACULTY to determine how the unit will fill senate seats and its not a decision by a dean or other college administrator.

For example, some units may vote to have one senator per department, or all seats to be college-wide at-large seats,

or some combination of departmental and at-large seats.

Or seats based on the proportional size of departments,

Or something else that each unit decides is best for them.

We hope to send that out to all units on January 21st...those votes for internal allocation must be completed by January 29th.

Once this information is returned to the senate office, we have just two days, until January 31st to provide specific information to each unit so they know which elections to run for which seats. During the month of February, faculty within each unit should have an open call for nominations, including self-nominations so interested faculty can run for the open seats. The elections need to be completed by March 1st...and the newly elected senators will be a part of the 2025-2026 session starting at the April 10th senate meeting

OK, that was a whole lot of information there. I am writing this up to go into the senate website so faculty can see how all these steps occur each and every year.

So, thinking ahead? How many senators will each of your units have in the coming year? I should know that sometime between this Friday afternoon---to possibly early next week if we have a slow poke in getting faculty rosters back to the senate office.

Once I have those number and we apportion data, I will send that information to all the senators. That way all of you can see how many general faculty your unit has, how many senators that gives your unit, and how other units are doing.

In looking and preparing for this yearly apportionment process, I looked at all the types of faculty we have in the senate: Assuming units elect roughly the same ratio of faculty back to senate in the coming year, we can expect to have

Roughly 45 tenure track faculty
Roughly 24 non tenure earning faculty
2 librarians
2 instructional designers
And 2 faculty on soft money position

I found it very informative to compare how many faculty we have of those types here in senate. A whole bunch can talk from the perspective of tenure track faculty...but only two can give us the perspective of being a librarian, for example.

OK, that's enough for now. I want to end by emphasizing what is happening next:

- 1) Each unit will know how many senators they get very very soon
- 2) Each unit will need to have a vote over the mechanism used to allocate faculty with your unit. It should help that you will know your total number of senators before having that vote
- 3) You have your votes for new senators from your unit

Did anyone have questions about the process we use?

UCF Faculty Senate Update from Provost Michael D. Johnson

Thursday, January 16, 2025 | 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Student Union, Charge On Chamber, Room 340

- Provost Johnson presented a campus update on behalf of himself and President Alexander N. Cartwright, who was in Tallahassee on university business.

Florida University Space Research Consortium with NASA

- Johnson highlighted the creation of the Florida University Space Research Consortium, a partnership between UCF, the University of Florida, and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University – the first state university consortium affiliated with NASA. He said the initiative builds on UCF’s momentum as Space U. and will help open doors to high-value research projects.

Student Success and the General Education Program

- Johnson reaffirmed UCF’s commitment to student success, noting that the university is on track this summer to meet the state’s four-year graduation rate requirement for preeminence. In supporting student success, he stressed the importance of curriculum and teaching methods alongside advising and support services.
- To enhance the General Education Program, Johnson appointed a task force — including Senate Chair Steve King and chairs of the main undergraduate curriculum committees — to recommend improvements with student success in mind. Their proposal simplifies the structure, reducing subject areas from 12 to 5 and offering students more flexibility. This plan will be reviewed by the undergraduate committee this semester, and Johnson encouraged faculty feedback. He said he is also considering curriculum policy changes to strengthen graduation pathways.

Course Materials Attestation

- Johnson addressed a new Board of Governors regulation requiring faculty to attest they have reviewed their course materials. While he opposed the requirement as unnecessary and anxiety-inducing, the university must comply, he said.
- If a faculty member refused to comply, he said the university regrettably would have to address it through the disciplinary process.

Better Research Space Planning

- Johnson said the university-wide Space Utilization Study that began last year showed opportunities to convert underused classrooms and offices for other uses.
- Some underused classrooms have been converted to research dry labs. Some administrative units renting space in the research park have been returned to campus, saving more than $4 million a year that can be reinvested in academics, he said.
- Johnson said 30 classrooms have been pulled from the scheduling process. The remaining classroom space is more than enough to meet UCF’s needs, he said.
- Johnson emphasized the need for better classroom efficiency, including adherence to grid scheduling. He noted that while UCF has sufficient classroom space, research wet labs remain a critical need. Seeking state funding for new research facilities is a priority, though any new construction would take years.
- The provost said UCF is hiring more faculty while some existing faculty members have expanded their research immensely and need more space, so the university must use current space as efficiently as possible.

- As part of this effort, Johnson said new guidelines and a rubric have been developed for deans and research directors to assess faculty needs and inventory their use of research space.
- The guidelines include quantitative and qualitative metrics to give consistency across the university while providing flexibility for individual units. He said more details are on UCF's Research Space Guidelines webpage.
- Johnson said deans and center directors have been charged to inventory their lab space, using the rubric, by the end of February. Reassignments will be necessary as research needs evolve, a process Johnson acknowledged can be sensitive but essential.

Key searches

- Johnson said the College of Health Professions and Sciences dean job search is underway and the job is being advertised. He said more details will follow as the process unfolds.
- On the College of Nursing dean search, Johnson said a search committee has been assembled and a search firm is in place.

Survey results

- Johnson said the latest COACHE survey data is available on the Faculty Excellence website. A faculty committee is reviewing the findings and will recommend actions. Results from the Faculty and Staff Experience Survey are expected soon, he said.

Retirement and transition to the next provost

- Johnson noted he will retire this summer, with a search committee for the next provost launching soon. He urged faculty to engage in the process, highlighting UCF's bright future as a draw for top candidates. He said he looks forward to a productive spring and continued engagement with the Senate, calling it one of the best parts of his job.
- Johnson concluded by thanking faculty for their service and taking questions.

B&A Committee Report:

The committee reviewed a document containing a list of UCF training, the unit owning it, and its frequency. We reviewed the 2024 Compliance and Ethics Annual Report, focusing on ways to reduce faculty training workload while meeting legislative requirements. More data (i.e. exact statutory requirements, hours allocated for completion) and faculty feedback about training is needed. We'd also like a list of efficiency recommendations from the Compliance and Training Workgroup. I have requested this information from VP Rhonda Bishop and AVP & CHRO Maureen Binder. Our upcoming meetings are:

- February 19, 2025 (Tentative): Senior Vice Provost Tim Letzring will update us on Simple Syllabus and syllabus content requirements.
- March 12, 2025: VP Bishop and CHRO Binder will discuss faculty training workload and potential reductions.

I.T Committee Report:

Summary for meeting of Tuesday, January 7, 2025, 3:00 p.m.

Committee met for an hour. Good discussion on new "E-mail In-place Archive" was held including why the change was made, faculty concerns about e-mail storage and our needs, and legal concerns over retention. Committee suggested having General Counsel visit a future meeting. In addition, some discussion of Overleaf availability and how such offerings are publicized, and training questions about using UCF apps was held.

Personnel Committee Report:

MEETING SUMMARY 1-15-25

An update on the Adhoc Committee on the Evaluation of Teaching was provided since 3 members of the Personnel Committee serve on this committee. The Personnel Committee also voiced their continued interest in ensuring that the Big 12 Faculty Fellowships allow non-award faculty to participate as long as they can procure funds. The committee was shown information on the UCF Retirement Association and UCF Policy 3-001.3 on retiree allowances at UCF. It was also noted that there is no mention of post-retirement activity with UCF in the CBA.

Research Council Report:

Research Council met on 1/13/25. At this meeting, we accomplished two goals. First, we approved a resolution to amend the bylaws to alter the faculty composition on Research Council. Second, we provided feedback to OR on their draft UCF Equipment Grant rfp.
